Information about writing a welcome letter

The welcome letter should explain the implementation of the course (total number and extent of physical meetings, study location, rate of study, explanation of the teaching method in words as well as brief information about examinations and compulsory meetings). If the course is offered as some form of distance study course, it is particularly important to describe the implementation of the course as described above. See below for suggested headings.

Remember to delete the instructions above when you are finished with your welcome letter.

Course Organisation

This fall semester, you will be studying two modules as follows: "Language Structure" will be taught in the first part of the semester (weeks 35-44 or period 1) and "Written Communication" will be taught in the second half of the semester (weeks 45-02, period 2). In the spring semester, you will study "Contemporary Literature in English", "Culture, Ethnicity, and Identity", and "World English". These are called modules for administrative purposes, but, since they cover quite different areas, are taught by different lecturers, and are assigned a number of credits each, they enjoy a certain degree of autonomy, which justifies referring to them as "courses", in everyday speech.

You will study Language Structure together with students enrolled in the Teacher Training Program. Language Structure ends with a written exam on the HiG campus or at any authorized exam location, but, in keeping with the principles of continuous assessment, all modules feature compulsory written assignments (examinerande uppgifter) throughout their respective periods. More information about the content and assessment procedures for individual modules will be published by the instructors on the course site on Blackboard (see "Communication" below). Attendance of all online classes is strongly recommended. Learning is a process, and missing classes or not doing one's work as scheduled seriously impairs one's learning and overall performance. Both modules include student participation in their assessment procedures. The teaching usually consists of lectures and seminars, but each module has its own structure and policy with respect to the forms of teaching. For example, Written Communication has virtually no lectures, given its focus on writing practice, while Language Structure features both lectures and seminars.

You should order all your course books in good time. A good idea is to get hold of the books indicated in the syllabus (kursplan) during the summer vacation.

Communication

All the meetings for this course are online; most of our classes will take place in "online classrooms" via the web conferencing system Adobe Connect Pro. Access to the digital classrooms will be provided through links posted on the course site on Blackboard. Please note that you need to have a headset, a microphone and a webcam so as to be able to fully participate in and enjoy our Adobe Connect sessions. If you wish to learn more about Adobe Connect and test your equipment, check this web page out.

On Blackboard, you will find specific information, such as detailed course descriptions, class schedule, teaching materials, course requirements and assignments. A great part of your work will be carried out via Blackboard, too. It is therefore essential that you enroll in the course on Blackboard as soon as you have been assigned a student account (keep in mind that course registration and enrollment in the course on Blackboard are separate things). Follow the steps under the heading "Get started with your studies". Once the module has started, you should check the course site on Blackboard on a daily basis. Important information will be posted by your instructors on the first page of the course site (as "Announcements"). I also strongly recommend that you use your HiG student e-mail account rather than your private e-mail account when communicating with your teachers.

Registration for Written Exams

Registration for exams as well as retakes via KronoX is mandatory. You can register no earlier than five weeks and no later than ten days before the exam. Please note that no post-registrations will be accepted. If you are a distance education student and are unable to take the exam on campus you can apply to take the exam at another location. Applications must be submitted no later than three weeks prior to the exam. Contact your faculty for more information.

Course Evaluation

After completion of your course a web-based course evaluation questionnaire will be sent to your HiG e-mail address. Your answers in the course evaluation are very valuable and your comments will help us improve and develop the course in the future. All students registered on the course will receive a course evaluation report where all answers are compiled. Individual modules may also include separate evaluation surveys.
